

Nominations for the 2024 Nancy Petry Mid-Career Award

The Nancy Petry Mid-Career Award (mid-career is defined as 11-20 years post PhD) recognizes exceptional professionals in the field of addiction science who have made significant contributions to mentoring, research, and service. This prestigious award honors individuals who have demonstrated excellence in these three key areas and have significantly impacted the field of addiction science.

Nominations for the Nancy Petry Mid-Career Award are based on the following criteria:

- 1. Excellence in Mentoring: Nominees for this award have displayed a remarkable commitment to mentoring and supporting the next generation of addiction scientists. They have shown exceptional skills in guiding and inspiring mentees, fostering their professional growth, and promoting a nurturing and inclusive environment for learning and development.
- 2. Excellence in Addiction Science Research: Nominees have made substantial contributions to addiction science research through their innovative and impactful work. Their research has advanced the understanding of addiction, its roots, prevention, treatment, and recovery, and has demonstrated excellence in methodology, rigor, and scientific contributions.
- 3. Commitment to Service in Addiction Science: Nominees have shown an outstanding dedication to service in the field of addiction science. They have actively engaged in initiatives and activities that promote the dissemination of knowledge, advocate for evidence-based practices, and contribute to the overall advancement of addiction science. Their commitment to service has had a significant and positive impact on the field and the broader community.

The Nancy Petry Mid-Career Award aims to honor individuals who embody the qualities of excellence, leadership, and dedication in mentoring, research, and service in addiction science. The award serves as recognition for their exceptional contributions and as an inspiration for others in the field to strive for excellence in their own careers.

Join us in celebrating the outstanding achievements of addiction science professionals by nominating deserving candidates for the prestigious Nancy Petry Mid-Career Award. Together, let's acknowledge and honor those who have made a lasting impact in mentoring, addiction science research, and service, and continue to advance our understanding and treatment of addiction.

To nominate please provide the following:

- 1. A 1-page written nomination that addresses the three areas above, noting specific mentees, research, and service activities.
- 2. A copy of the nominees most recent CV
